

Options by IBM 3.5" ATA (EIDE) Hard Drive Part Number Listing *

Why so many Part Numbers?

The IBM Personal Computing Division ships millions of hard drives per year. Because, from time to time any of our suppliers can have parts shortages, quality, or cost problems, for continuity of top quality, reasonably priced supply, we buy these drives from most of the top suppliers in the hard drive industry. The drives exhibiting the best performance characteristics are selected for sale to our options customers. For the life of the option offering, up to two years in many cases, as new drives (with the same capacity) that meet or exceed the originally announced specifications come available, they are sold in the option in place of the original drives that are no longer available.

Each option PN, the PN you order which is the PN on the outside of the shipping container, can contain any of the approved suppliers' drives, each having a different drive PN. The drive PN is the IBM 7-character PN that is on the drive's label.

If your drive should ever fail, replacements are stocked in IBM warehouses world wide by a Field Replacement Unit (FRU) number. Below the drive PN on you drive's label is a FRU PN. That is the number that must be requested from the IBM parts network if you ever need a replacement. Usually our equivalent drives from different suppliers share a common FRU PN.
