This package also includes a separate sheet that contains the Software License Agreement. This software is provided to you under the terms and conditions of the Software License Agreement. Please take a few moments to review the agreement.

This release is full of value-added features and enhancements, so we wanted to ensure that you received a copy to install on your SGI 1400L. In the future, CD copies of our value-added software will be available for purchase through SGI. If you want to know more about our Linux Support and Services please see the enclosed datasheet and also consult our Linux Support web site at:

<http://support.sgi.com/linux>.

With the introduction of the SGI 1400L, SGI has introduced many Linux support options and services to meet your needs. These services are outlined in the attached datasheet. With our strong commitment to Linux and Open Source computing and our many contributions to the open source community, expect to see the continued introduction of new and valuable support programs, educational courses, and consulting services.

We thank you for your continued commitment to SGI.

Sincerely,
